Autobiography

My name is Andrii. I'm 26 years old. I was born in Lviv, but my family moved to the village Zymna Voda. I live with my family. My father Ihor works as a guard at a supermarket and my mother Maria is a storekeeper. My sister is a cook by profession, but now she lives in Norway with her husband. I'm not married.

My height is 177 cm, weight is 85 kg.

I got my first experience at agriculture at my grandparents' farm at the village. Twice a year, when I had my long-term holidays, I went to the farm. I got along well with animals, that's why I helped to do different work: preparing food for cows, pigs, rabbits, feeding them and cleaning in the barns. Moreover, my grandfather had several hives at his household and I helped him with beekeeping.

Talking about my working experience, I worked as a cook. But after few years of working I realized that cooking is rather hobby. I decided to follow my grandparents' steps and started getting an agricultural education.

I became a student of Vocational Agrarian Lyceum in 2019. I chose the faculty of veterinary and stockbreeding. Studying there we combine getting theoretical knowledge with practical skills. In the first semester I practised at the training farm, where all students of the lyceum had a practice. We spent there two months and during that period I had such duties as taking care of the animals, giving food and water to them, moving the animals, cleaning up the stables.

I speak English, Russian and Polish. Ukrainian is my native language.

As for my hobby, I like playing football, fishing, cooking, watching movies. I am fond of animals.

Now I want to continue developing my skills in veterinary and stockbreeding. I know about an educational program in Denmark and I would be thankful for the opportunity to train there at the pig breeding farm where I would be able to get an experience of advanced Danish animal husbandry. As most of young men, I am open to everything new, so I'm looking forward to getting new work experience.

Regards,

Andrii
